1

Decide which boards and commissions you want to apply for

You can read about our boards and commissions here before you apply.

2

Apply using the online form

Some boards have more requirements than others. We'll guide you through this process if you apply online.

Complete the application in English here

3

Make sure you're in good standing with the City

We check with a few departments to make sure you're in good standing: the City Attorney, the City Treasurer, and Income Tax. Contact these departments to make sure your application is approved. You can call us, and we'll connect you with these departments. Our number is in the Contact Us section of this page.

4

Wait for a decision

This process can take some time. Here are a few things to keep in mind:

- We review your application as soon as we get it. But we don't make appointments until we have openings on specific boards and commissions.
- Most openings are filled in December and January, but sometimes there are openings at other times. Click here to check the current list of openings.
- If you applied for a board that doesn't have openings, don't worry. Your application is good for at least a full year.

5

Go to board and commission meetings

If you want to sit on a board, it's a good idea to go to meetings. You can get familiar with the board's duties and meet current members.
